

Will attending the Region Staff College help me at work?

Thursday, 05 May 2011 06:58 - Last Updated Sunday, 08 April 2012 20:29

Absolutely! The skills taught at Regions Staff College are in great demand by employers in all industries. Flip through the Classified section in any newspaper and you'll read employers' ads looking for people with management and communications skills, the same as you'll see at NERSC! Upon graduation you will receive a letter of course completion to present to your employer, which you can also use to submit for professional development credit. Many employers will pay you to attend such a course. We will also be happy to provide a letter for your employer describing the RSC, and the benefits of your attendance to his business with an eye toward his paying for it, or at least giving you the time off.